Steam is a popular service that gives you access to a huge number of game projects. You can buy games and any other applications in Steam, browse and play games, and communicate with other players online. At the same time, Steam has several sections divided into games and applications. Generally, games are divided into categories, which can also be sorted by popularity, popularity in the last 90 days, game genre, etc. That's fine, but I want them sorted by my choice. Otherwise, when a user clicks on the games section, a tab with games with other tabs opens for them. I know I do. For example, in the apps section, you can click anywhere and launch the app you want, and if you like that it's a game, you can click on it to go to the apps tab (where you can install an Android app, for example).
